

CS Key Messages: Combination Prevention

- Combination Prevention should be inclusive of an array of interventions providing comprehensive bio-medical and behavioral components that address and provide legal services, education and financing along HIV prevention, treatment care and support.
- Community voices and experiences are key to developing effective and culturally relevant Combination Prevention policies and interventions.
- Human Rights must be considered for all people within effective Combination Prevention Interventions.
- Effective Combination Prevention interventions and policies must acknowledge and respond to the specific social/political/cultural/environmental conditions that make people vulnerable to HIV and AIDS.

CS Key Messages:

Combination Prevention

- Promotion of equitable access and non-discrimination are key Human Rights elements of effective Prevention Interventions that can expand access and positive health impact for MSM, Transgender, Sex workers, PUD, Women and Girls and young people as well as PLWHIV.
- Policy frameworks needs to recognize, support and reinforce programming meeting diverse variation of context specific prevention needs (i.e. Women, Migrants, Sex Workers, PUD, MSM, Women and Girls, Young People, Transgender persons and people living with HIV)
